UPCOMING

Publications

1. Long Lever Techniques: An Osteopathic Manual. I am the first author. Second author, Richard Huff, D.O. Published by North Atlantic Publishing. Available Spring 2022.
2. Case series, Osteopathic treatment of coccydynia: a quality improvement project. I am the primary investigator and treating physician. Study conducted at the University of Wisconsin School of Medicine and Public Health, Department of Family Medicine and Community Health. Step-up treatment modalities included osteopathic manipulation, transrectal osteopathic manipulation, and prolotherapy regenerative injections. First author.
3. Multiple Modality Integrative Care for Chronic Low Back Pain: A Quality Improvement Project. I am the principal investigator and provider for a quality improvement study of patients with nonspecific chronic low back pain. Participants were provided step-up or combination therapy including osteopathic manipulative treatment, peripheral nerve injections, and dextrose prolotherapy. Patients were assessed for the following at three-month intervals: pain intensity (Numerical Rating Scale), disability (Oswestry Disability Index), and quality of life (Veterans RAND 12-item Health Survey). All data scores were calculated and analyzed by a University of Wisconsin Statistician. Results suggests all three treatment modalities are worthwhile adjuncts in the treatment of nonspecific chronic low back pain. First author.
 - I am the first physician to introduce electronic data capture and scoring in the University of Wisconsin Department of Family Medicine. Using a $25,000 Department of Family Medicine small grant, this study introduced use of in-office tablets and at-home electronic health records communication to compile patient scores directly into their electronic health records.
4. Dextrose-based Prolotherapy Induces Apoptosis and Reduces the Release of Inflammatory Mediators from Macrophages. Manuscript suggests a mechanism of dextrose prolotherapy using an in-vitro model. I am a contributing author. I was the catalyst and recruiter of the team of contributing authors consisting of clinicians and scientists working together to discover the mechanism of action of dextrose prolotherapy. Awaiting Publication

Novel Ideas, Inventions, and Patents

1. Slanted Adaptor, LLC. CEO & Founder. 2015: Design and manufacture of SyringePro, an ergonomic syringe accessory that reduces repetitive strain injuries of the wrist and hand. The FDA Class I medical device supports patient and provider comfort, allowing for thinner needles to be used with injections while simultaneously decreasing physician hand strain and improving hand steadiness.
 - I led 7 UW biomedical engineering students in designing a syringe adaptor to improve leverage and comfort with repeated injections.
 - Submission and maintenance of FDA approval and quality control.
 - Patents – utility and design.
 - Trademarked.
